PREFACE

Scattered all over New England are traces of old neglected cemeteries, often remote from the traveled roads, the monuments therein broken and decayed, and perhaps buried by overgrowths and debris. Already many such are completely obliterated, the only evidence of their existence being proved by the plowshare in the hands of a new people, but lately in possession of the soil; a people having little, if any, sentimental interest in the former occupants.

With the general revival of interest in our ancestors during the past few years, largely induced by the numerous patriotic hereditary societies that have recently sprung into existence, fresh impulses have throbbed in our hearts to honor the memory of the long-departed dead. Many ancient burial-grounds, for years left to the ravages of nature and the destructive hand of the stranger, have been as nearly as possible restored to their pristine condition, and this commendable work is still extending. In this State, laws have recently been enacted in view of encouraging the restoration of these "God's Acres," and many of our older country towns are availing themselves of the improved opportunities by organizing, with corporate power, for the purpose of renovating the old cemeteries within their borders.

Probably in but few of the burying-grounds in New England are the older stones in a better state of preservation than in the old cemetery at Wethersfield. This is unquestionably due to the sandy nature of the soil, as well as to the fact that few trees have existed to collect those enemies of sandstone and marble, dampness and the consequent mould.

The inscriptions in the three cemeteries herein referred to as Newington, "Church Street," and "Beckley Quarter" were copied by Mr. Edwin Stanley Welles of Newington and kindly contributed by him. The editor desires also to extend his grateful thanks to Mr. William F. J. Boardman of Hartford for his kindly interest and generous aid in the publication of the work, as also to Mr. Benjamin Adams of Wethersfield for his valuable services in connection with its compilation.

Wethersfield.

Located nearly in the center of the present village of Wethersfield, and directly in the rear of the old First Church edifice, there rises above the low surrounding country, to an elevation of perhaps twenty feet, a nearly circular sand hill in the midst of a large tract of heavy loam. Proofs are not wanting that this hill was originally a burial-mound of the aborigines of the country. Tradition also tells us that before the advent of the white man the river rose to an unprecented height, forcing the local inhabitants to encamp upon its summit for a period of several days, who suffered much inconvenience meantime for lack of food; and from henceforth it was known in local nomenclature as " Hungry Hill " — a name fraught with meaning to this day. And nowhere in New England can a more beautiful natural location be found for the interment of loved friends, commanding as it does a wonderful prospect of the " Great River " winding for miles through its fertile meadows, with the uplands of Glastonbury in the background. Here, near the little log church, the fathers of the town were laid to rest, and to-day this cemetery, with its subsequent enlargements, is the only one in the present township. It originally embraced the eastern and a part of the western declivity.

December 27, 1680, " it was voted and agreed that Emanuel Buck shall dig all graves and he is to have foure shillings a pece for growne persons and thre shillings a pece for all others."

March 24, 1681, a committee appointed for the purpose, reported " that the Townes men with Lieut. Steell layd out the highway from the Street to the burying place on the south side of Zachery Seamers Lott one Rod and quarter wide, haveing first Laid out half an acre to Zachery Seamer, and sett mear stones and Measured Samuell Smiths lott and finding for him one Rood and upwards of land." Two years later, in 1683, some controversy having arisen over the boundaries of the yard, a committee was appointed to establish the bounds. December 24, 1684, it was agreed that the plot should be seven rods wide and twenty-three and three-quarters rods long, containing a little over an acre.

The first enlargement was made March 8, 1736, when Nathaniel Burnham, in return for land given him by the town, granted to the Society a piece of land on the west and a narrow strip on the south, thus nearly doubling the area of the original plot.

The second addition was on January 29, 1760, when the ground was extended on the west by nearly a quarter of an acre, James Mitchell being the grantor. This brought the burial line nearly up to the foundations of the present church edifice, the cornerstone of which was laid May 6, 1761.

February 25, 1853, the First School Society, into whose hands the care of the property had passed, purchased what is known as the "Clapp extension" on the east, containing a trifle over one and three-quarters acres.

The last as well as the largest extension in the history of the cemetery occurred on July 22, 1881, when two acres on the south were granted to the School Society by the heirs of the Rev. John Marsh. Only a part of this has as yet been improved and laid out in lots, however. The entire area of the cemetery to-day is nearly five and three-quarters acres, containing some 1,500 monuments. The earliest stone extant is that of Leonard Chester, who died in 1648, although there were several burials previous to his. But two other stones erected prior to 1700 remain to-day, those of Captain John Chester, who died February 23, 1697, and Mrs. Sarah Chester, who died December 12, 1698.

When called to mourn the early doom
Of one affection held most dear.
While o'er the closing silent tomb,
The bleeding heart distills the tears;
Though love its tribute sad will pay
And early streams of solace shun ——
Still, still, the humble soul would say
In lowest dust — Thy will be done.

In memory of Capt. Gideon Welles of Weathersfield. | A person of an engaging deportment, his genius naturally good, | was cultivated by reading & intercourse with mankind, he had | a happy faculty in the dispatch of business, punctual and faithful | in all his dealings, was exemplary in every social, civil and | religious duty, a blessing to mankind. He rests not here but | in returning from the westindies he suddenly sicken'd and died | Feb. 11th AD. 1795, aged 39 years. | The bosom of devouring seas Entombs my mouldering dust, | There life and all my active powers are in a moment lost. | In kind remembrance of my love my friends will not refuse to weep, | My hands would once have dry'd your tears, But now lies buried in the deep. | Yet weep in hope my bones are safe wrap't in the unchaind decree, | The trump that wakes the dead on earth shall call me from the sea. |

Beneath this stone lies interr'd the belov'd remains of Miss Mary Welles, | A person amiable in her manners, kind and benevolent in her disposition, | an early lover of her God, and a believer in Christ her redeemer. She | cheerfully sunk into the arms of death Augst 10th 1793. Aged 26 years. | My spirit cries i am not dead, my body moulders in the ground, | My Soul to God in heaven is fled, sometimes i glide down ethers space | And watch and view my weeping friends, back i return to Gods | embrace, and there my quick execusion ends.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, NEWINGTON,

IN THE REAR OF WHICH IS THE GRAVEYARD

Newington.

In May, 1713, the Second, or West, parish of Wethersfield was incorporated, although the church was not organized until October 17, 1722. The inhabitants of this society continued to use the common burying-ground until, on March 7, 1726, upon their petition, the town of Wethersfield granted them "one Acre of Land for a Burying place near their Meeting house or Elsewhere in the half mile Common and to be Laid out by Deacon Jabez Whittlesey, Deacon John Deming and Richard Bordman, who shall bound out the same by sufficient Monuments and Record it to sd society." On December 4, 1752, this committee reported that "We have laid out an Acre of Land for said purpose a little north of the meeting house in sd Newington, including the old Burying place, and bounded it out by Sufficient monuments, it being Sixteen Rods in Length East and West, and ten rods in Width North and South." This was apparently sufficient in size for the needs of the parish until December 12, 1842, when Henry Kilbourn sold to the society a small strip on the west, 'measuring 155 links from north to south and 37 links in width from east to west, containing nine rods and one hundred and one square feet. Said piece of land is divided into five lots by the Grantees for a burying-ground."

November 8, 1843, Henry Kilbourn sold to the School Society, "for the use and benefit of a common Burying Ground," land containing one rood, twenty-two and seven-eighths rods, on the south of the yard. The last addition, which was also the largest, was made December 1, 1865, when the School Society purchased of Henry Kilbourn and Samuel N. Rockwell a piece of land on the west, containing one and a half acres, making the present plot nearly three acres in extent. The oldest inscription is on the stone of Lydia, wife of Pelatiah Buck, who died July 29, 1726, | and was "the first that was laid in this yard." The present town of Newington was incorporated July 10, 1871.

Rocky Hill.

The Third Society of Wethersfield, comprising the southern section of the town, and known as Stepney Parish, was incorporated in May, 1722. The inhabitants, however, continued to use the old yard of the First Society until January 19, 1731, when it was "Voated and agreed that we would have a burying Yard to bury our dead in on that hill known by ye name of Coals Hill a little Southward of that place where Andrew Attwood formerly erected a Coopers-Shop — and by a Voat made Choys of Capt. Ephraim Goodrich, Sargt. Thos. Deming and Mr. Samwel Williams be a Committee in behalf of ye Society To apply themselves to ye Town of Weathersfield at a Town Meeting in March next for a Confirmation of ye aforesd burying yard, and to Desire ye Town to Send a Committee to lay it out to this Society for ye use aforesd."

This petition was granted, as the following report of March 5th implies: "We, the Subscribers Appointed a Committee by the Town of Weathersfield to Lay out a Burying Yard of a Suitable bigness for ye Use of Stepney parish att a place Called Coles Hill, Did on the 4th of sd. March perform sd Service as follows vis. Having Measured Six Rods East from ye South East Corner of Samuell Smiths Land We Sett down a Stone: From which we Measured 12 Rods Eastward, Att the End of which 12 Rods We Sett Down a Stone: We then Measured Southward 20 Rods, where We Set Down a Stone: From which we measured 12 Rods Westward, where We Sett Down a Stone: From which We measured 20 Rods Northward which brought us to the Stone first Mentioned."

Joseph Treat.
John Chester.
Jonathan Belding.

"May 31, 1731. Whereas there is a burying Yard agreed upon by this Society, And Granted a Lot out to us by ye Town of Weathersfield, This Society at ys meeting have agreed by Voat to make Suitable and Decent Provision for our Carrying on of funerals among us."

This, with its additions of 1800, 1849, and 1859, is the only cemetery in Rocky Hill, which was incorporated as a town in May, 1843. The earliest stone, bearing date of June 2, 1731, records the death of the infant daughter of Benjamin and Mary Deming.

Beckley Quarter.

As early as 1668, Sergeant Richard Beckley bought from Turramuggus, Sachem of the Mattabesett tribe of Indians, a tract of 300 acres in what is known as Beckley Quarter, in the northeast part of the town of Berlin. In May, 1713, Newington, including Beckley Quarter, was incorporated as the Second or West Society of Wethersfield; in October, 1715, Beckley Quarter was annexed to the Second Society of Farmington (Great Swamp), named Kensington in May, 1722, and now a part of the town of Berlin. The cemetery at Beckley Quarter was opened in 1760, Daniel Beckley, Jr., who died March 4, 1760, being the first to be buried there. The town of Berlin, taken from Wethersfield, Farmington, and Middletown, was incorporated in May, 1785.

In virtue's path she trod
Alike in sorrow as in joy
Her trust was in her God.

They were lovely and pleasant in their lives
And in their death's they were not long divided.

Lydia B. Porter | Died | June 10, 1842, | Æ. 18.

Not dead not dead it is not so
Our lost one only sleeps
Free from this world's harrassing woe
In Jesus calmly sleeps
Why then in sadness longer mourn
Though love's strong ties be riven
And death from us our child hath torn
We yet may "Meet in Heaven."

They were lovely and pleasant in their lives
And in their death's they were not long divided

"Church Street," Newington.

The Episcopal parish of Wethersfield and Worthington was chartered September 14, 1797, the application being signed by David Steele and seven others. The edifice was erected at the south end of Church street, on the east side, was 50x40 feet in dimensions, and was called "Christ's Church." A cemetery was laid out across the street from the church, and for nearly thirty years the inhabitants of that faith within a radius of ten miles met here for worship and burial. This was in the southwest part of Newington. The building was sold for one hundred and fifteen dollars by the committee to Jabez Dickinson, November 17, 1826, and a few years later the society located in New Britain, where it is now known as "St. Mark's." The earliest stone bears the date August 27, 1803, and is that of Sophia, daughter of David and Lucy Gilbert. The yard is practically abandoned to-day as a place of burial, the last interment having been in August, 1886, though one or two families in the neighborhood own lots there, in which they bury their dead.

Glastonbury.

The present town of Glastonbury, lying on the east side of the Connecticut River, did not become separated from the mother town until October, 1693, at which time the church was organized, although its incorporation dates from May, 1690. On May 4, 1692, two of the inhabitants, Samuel Smith and John Hubbard, granted to the town a plot of ten acres for the erection of a meeting-house and for a burying-ground. The only enlargement of this cemetery was in 1867, when two acres were added on the east. The earliest stone is that of Eunice (Chester) Stevens, wife of the Rev. Timothy Stevens, dated June 4, 1698. The following inscriptions were intended to include only those who were born previous to the separation in 1693, although for convenience they comprise all born before 1700.
